GENERAL NOTES.

The soliloquy of Hamlet contains eighty one words, of which all but three are Anglo Saxon

The difference between a dishonest debtor and an importunate creditor is that one is a "[illegible]" and the other a dun

A noted architect, when asked what was the best system of ventilation replied, "open fire-places in every room"

The Shah frightens his wives into submission by wearing an European plug hat drawn threateningly over his right eye

A stranger in New York writes to the Herald "I came into your great city, yesterday, an entire stranger I stopped on the corner of Broadway and Canal streets as I was lost I asked of a policeman the shortest route to South street. His generous answer was 'I don't know, never [illegible] it.'"

Young man never aspire. Remember what happened to the fellow who sailed [illegible] I recollect the story so He was a nice young man and had wealthy connections But he wouldn't mind the old man nor heed the maiden who asked him to call on her Naturally he was found frozen stiff still shouting Excelsior —Boston Transcript

A Washington lady upon the marriage of her daughter gave her intended son in law three dollars in a sealed envelope with which to fee the minister The enterprising youth abstracted two thirds of the amount and delivered the remaining one dollar to the preacher Now, with a commencement like this what chance has that mother in-law

Notwithstanding the fact that the election is over and things are normal again in the Sagebrush State, the Virginia Enterprise continues to follow up the eloquent Fitch with its crushing lower-case sarcasm persistently alluding to him as Tom fitch How long we wonder, will he of the silver tongue be able to bear up against this diabolical persecution

A handsome young Englishman, making a call at a house in Washington where resided some of the loveliest young ladies, suddenly discovered that he had come out without his purse. The prettiest of the ladies said "Shall I lend you a dollar?" "Would you" was the reply The dollar was produced from the most charming portmonnaie, and the beautiful American said laughingly, "I must have interest you know when you return it." The handsome Englishman called next day, repaid the dollar, and placing a couple of exquisite cut bottles of perfume on the table added, "And there is the interest, two cents"

A LOUD CALL FOR AID

TOPEKA, Kan, Nov 30—The Kansas State Central Relief Committee, at its meeting in this city issued an address to the people setting forth the extent of the destitution in this region, and the plan proposed for relief The address states "We have sufficient proof that in some cases solicitors of aid are unprincipled persons, that they are actuated by selfish motives and that they are entirely unworthy of confidence We but discharge an important duty devolved upon us by our appointment when we warn our friends against placing their benefactions in the hands of unauthorized, irresponsible parties If there are those outside of the State who desire to aid us in supplying the wants of our hardy industrious, but now unfortunate pioneers this Committee affords them a mode through which their contributions may be judiciously applied to them and fully accounted for All persons now engaged or proposing to engage in soliciting contributions, either in this State or beyond it upon satisfying the Committee of their fitness for such service, will be recommended to the Executive Department of the State for indorsement. Such indorsement made by the Governor will be a guaranty of the responsibility of the party to whom it is granted and in [illegible] of such indorsement in any case should not be overlooked by those to whom application may be made Whatever contributions of money or supplies may be sent to this Committee will be properly and judiciously distributed among the needy Individuals or local committees desiring more specific information concerning matters connected with the relief of our people should address directly to the Secretary of the Committee, and all remittances of funds should be made to the Treasurer at Topeka With confidence we assert that our suffering people are not wanting in enterprise or courage nor any of the elements of true manhood The uncomplaining patience with which even women and children are enduring the misfortunes that have fallen upon them is nothing short of heroic Our people have not lost faith in themselves nor in the resources of the State in which they live. In their behalf we confidently appeal to the liberality of those who consider it a privilege to minister to the wants of the suffering (Signed) E. A. STOVER Lieutenant Governor, and President of the Kansas Central Relief Commission

SOUTHERN OREGON

WILBUR Nov 30 1874

The last few days have been dry and favorable for out-door work There are quite a number of farmers in the valleys of Douglas county busy plowing for wheat and flax But when at fifty cents a bushel does not leave the producer any profit As a consequence a large number of the best farmers are going in to sheep as rapidly as they can get their fields into grass

DOUGLAS COUNTY

Has long been distinguished for the adaptation of its rolling hills and mountain ranges for sheep and for the number of them raised Now the valleys are being gradually appropriated to the same object and with success The stock is being improved by the introduction of thoroughbred bucks more care taken of the sheep by better pasture good stock sheds and winter feed In a reasonable time the hills and valleys of this large county will be covered with flocks of good sheep and herds of fine cattle Many of the old settlers have sold out and gone to frontier life to which they naturally gravitate Their places have been bought by neighboring farmers who have turned them into extensive sheep ranges Not a few of these settlers now occupy the places of two, three, four, and even more farmers The result is that the population of the county has decreased within the last few years while the adjoining Coos county, being a lumbering ship building coal mining and agricultural one has doubled its population during the last three years A large number of the farmers of the county who can afford to hold their wheat rather than sell it for fifty cents a bushel are holding it for paying prices or for raising hogs, that will give them reasonable remuneration for their labor This state of matters will be remedied if the

RAILROAD FROM ROSEBURG TO COOS BAY

Be built The steps favorable to it are progressing The lumbering, shipbuilding coal mining and railroad construction on Coos Bay, its tributaries and Coquille Valley will ask outlets and supplies south as well as north Three or four of the old and new coal mining companies will most likely have lines of coal steamers next summer running from the Bay to San Francisco These steamship companies will make freight to secure freight and passenger traffic both ways, so as to reduce the price of freight on coal, thereby enabling them to compete successfully in the San Francisco market. These companies in order to secure the freight and passenger trade of Southern Oregon, will encourage and render valuable aid to such an enterprise as a railroad from Roseburg to Coos Bay If this is accomplished which is now a general topic of discussion and the accomplishment highly probable the productions of Douglas Curry and Coos counties can be sent to San Francisco as cheap as to Portland at present Wheat that is now selling here for fifty cents a bushel will then sell for 75 cents and in ordinary years when the usual price is 75 cents, it will bring a dollar a bushel There is hope yet for the tillers of the soil of Southern Oregon Then the farmers and business men of this part of the State will have the advantages of legitimate competition in freights and travel new enterprises will be stimulated and the general interests of the State rapidly developed and advanced

WILBUR

Is one of the early educational settlements of the State and has one of the best academies in the Umpqua valley It was established by the labors and liberality of Father Wilbur one of the most upright esteemed and loved ministers of the M. E. Church in Oregon The Academy is still under the control of the Methodist Conference. Like other institutions of a similar kind it has its ups and downs its times of prosperity and adversity, according as the teachers were competent or incompetent It's the competent general that makes the successful army, whether in the field of battle or in the institution of learning Some time since a part of the old building was burned down. The friends of the Academy resolved to build a new one An excellent site was chosen, the plans prepared, preparations made and the erection commenced It is now almost finished and will cost $3000 when completed The money was raised by private subscription Mr F Sutherland Mr D[illegible]dd and Mr Chapman headed the list with $300 each Other parties subscribed liberally There still remained $100 due to pay off all indebtedness To raise this sum it was determined to [illegible]

OPENING OF THE ACADEMY WITH A SOCIABLE

On Friday evening the assembly met in the large hall of the building The meeting commenced at 7 P M but long before that hour the hall was almost full The train brought a large number of friends from Oakland When the Rev C W Todd the Superintendent of the building and Agent of the Academy called the meeting to order there were 250 persons in the hall comprising the principal ladies, leading families of the town and the most influential young ladies and gentlemen for many miles round Wilbur The youth beauty, intelligence, refinement and wealth of the place were well represented Elegant music vocal and instrumental was provided by the [illegible] Grubb, Miss Hill, Miss Curtis Miss Chapman, the M[illegible] Sutherland and others. Addresses were made by Rev C W Todd Rev. Mr Patterson, Rev. Mr Herron, Prof F D Curtis and Mr F Sutherland The ladies provided a substantial and elegant supper, that was fully appreciated by all present

The amount raised, including tickets of admission and subscriptions, amounted to $300 Rev C W Todd and Prof. Curtis gave $50 each The entire indebtedness will be paid by Christmas when the ladies are to give one of their brilliant concerts for the purpose of raising funds to purchase a piano for the institution

The Academy now under the charge of Professor F. D Curtis never was more successful and will be still more so during the coming term commencing on this day week Miss Curtis sister of the Principal an accomplished lady and a universal favorite has charge of the primary Department Miss Grubb, one of the resident young ladies of Wilbur and a splendid musician gives lessons on the pianoforte and has general charge of the musical department of the Academy During the winter term there will not be less than 1[illegible] pupils in attendance. Father Wilbur and the friends who are now carrying out his intelligent and benevolent designs are to be congratulated for the present prosperity of the Academy and its prospects of still greater usefulness The Trustees have been most fortunate in securing the services of Professor Curtis Miss Curtis and Miss Grubb

A SABBATH DAY AT WILBUR.

This being the first time that I have had an opportunity of seeing Wilbur, and having heard much about it I remained over the Sabbath so as to get a fair knowledge of the people and their institutions The morning opened calm, cool and peaceful The surrounding mountains the beautiful valley the charming grove, the neat cottages and the elegant Academy are calculated to make a lasting impression on the mind There are no drams in the town to attract rowdies and loafers to disturb the peace and solemnity of such a day Public worship was held in the hall of the Academy morning and evening by ministers of the M E Church and Sabbath School at 1 o'clock These meetings are well attended and conducted with efficiency and zeal They afford a good opportunity to judge of the intelligence refinement moral and religious tone of the people Mrs C W Todd Mrs B [illegible] Todd and Miss Grubb [illegible] and a number of young ladies are samples of Christian workers that any community might well be grateful for The families are distinguished for numerous and beautiful children, and for their social character and hospitality I left Wilbur with a favorable impression of no ordinary character

RED FISH IN IDAHO.

[From the Silver City, Idaho World.]

About one hundred miles to the northward of Idaho City is Payette Lake as beautiful a sheet of water as can be found This lake is the largest of a cluster of four or five situated in the immediate vicinity, and is about forty two miles in length by three miles (average) in width It is both fed and drained by the north fork of the Payette river which passes directly through it Its waters are said to be hundreds of feet deep and are as clear as the most finely polished mirror The country around the lake is mountainous, the scenery varied but picturesque and beautiful In it is found a species of fish known here by the name of red fish an appellation derived from their color, which is a beautiful vermilion, with the exception of the head and fins, which are of a dark earthy green color Their habits are similar to those of the salmon, and like the salmon they spawn and then die The male and female are easily distinguishable the colors of the male being much brighter than those of the female They live in the deep water of the lake and we have no account of one ever having been seen in the lake only when coming up out of water at the mouth of the river when going up the river to spawn which they do from about the first of July until nearly the last of October. When ascending the river they travel in schools numbering from one to two or three hundred and fishermen land them in large quantities by means of drag nets and seines When fresh or when properly cured they are esteemed a greater delicacy than even the mountain trout but great skill and care and above all great cleanliness is required for their preservation in a condition for the table. Dried they are preferred to either herring or codfish, but the best way to preserve them is in brine Put up in this way—care being taken to have them perfectly fresh and perfectly clean—they are probably not excelled by any fish in the world The writer has seen them [illegible] in the fall moving down the river as if returning to the lake but such multitudes of them die along the stream that it is believed to be impossible that they get back alive

In size the red fish vary but little being generally about 20 inches long and weighing from 3 to 5 pounds. Being unknown to both British and American fishermen they are coming to be looked upon as confined solely to Idaho and Lake Payette and the object of this article is to call attention to the fact of their existence and to draw out an expression of opinion from persons capable of judging as to their place among the finny tribes Besides they are a great delicacy and it may yet be found practicable to stock the lakes of California Oregon Nevada, and perhaps of all the Northern and Northwestern States and Territories with them the only apparent requisite necessary to their propagation being depth of pure, cold water, and a gravelly stream for their spawn

THE DEBUT OF QUEEN VICTORIA.—The King died at twenty minutes after 2 in the morning the young Queen met the Council at Kensington Palace at 11 Never was anything like the first impression she produced or the chorus of praise and admiration which is raised about her manner and behavior—and certainly not without justice It was very extraordinary, and something far beyond what was looked for Her extreme youth and inexperience, and the ignorance of the world concerning her naturally excited intense curiosity to see how she would act on this trying occasion The doors were thrown open and the Queen entered accompanied by her two uncles who advanced to meet her She bowed to the lords took her seat and then read her speech in a clear distinct and audible voice and without any appearance of fear or embarrassment She was quite plainly dressed and in mourning After she had read her speech the Privy Councillors were sworn the two royal dukes first by themselves and as these two old men, her uncles, knelt before her swearing allegiance and kissing her hand I saw her blush up to the eyes as if she felt the contrast between their civil and their natural relations, and this was the only sign of emotion which she evinced Her manner was very graceful and engaging She kissed them both and rose from her chair and moved toward the Duke of Sussex who was farthest from her and too infirm to reach her I particularly watched her when Melbourne and the Ministers and the Duke of Wellington and Peel approached her She went through the whole ceremony, occasionally looking at Melbourne for instructions when she had any doubt what to do which hardly ever occurred, and with perfect calmness and self possession but at the same time with perfect modesty and propriety particularly interesting and ingratiating The young Queen, who might well be either dismayed or confounded with the grandeur and novelty of her situation seemed neither the one nor the other, and behaved with a decorum and propriety beyond her years, and with all the sedateness and dignity the want of which was so conspicuous in her uncle

A WHALING DISASTER.

LOSS OF A BOAT'S CREW OF SIX MEN IN A SNOW SQUALL WHILE LOOKING FOR WHALES.

[From the Hawaiian Gazette Nov 12th]

The James [illegible] Allen reports a melancholy accident which happened near Herald Island on the 1st of October last. Captain Kelley says that on the above mentioned day he lowered his boats for whales close to the ship's bow, the mate stood out ahead of the ship about a mile and tacked, standing on the opposite course until he was about three quarters of a mile from the ship on the weather bow The weather was rugged, with frequent thick snow squalls The mate lowered his sail to have a better chance to see the whales, and was last seen in that position. At this time the Captain saw a whale off the ship's lee-quarter and signaled the boats to go there He in the meantime wore ship, and before the vessel came to the wind looked to see if the boats were coming when he missed

He became alarmed at once, as there was a heavy snow squall coming down, [illegible] immediately set the recall signals in [illegible] that if they were all right they would set their sail, so that they could be seen As the approaching squall threw a dark gloom on the water he could not see them, no boat could be seen, the snow squall enveloped the spot where they were He then made sail for the spot with the ship where the boat was last seen When the squall blew over nothing was to be seen of the boat. The mastheads were manned by the sharpest eyed men on board as all felt anxious for the safety of the boat's crew When the ship reached about the place

The James Allen wore off to cross to leeward, when they saw an oar and two hats lowered a boat to pick those things up not knowing but there might be a man The next moment they saw the boat off the lee quarter, bottom up, with

NOT A SOUL TO TELL THE STORY

Captain Kelley says from the appearance of the boat he judged they had struck a whale and been drawn down by the line getting foul, in which case they could not have kept afloat longer than ten minutes, as it was bitterly cold and the ice making very fast, the spray freezing as it struck the ship The lines in the boat were frozen stiff and the Captain thinks that it was from this cause that the line got foul The names of these unfortunate men were John Norton, chief mate Alexander Collins boat-steerer Thomas Barker, John Sevpan Charles Ambler, Charles Beyer, seamen This sad occurrence cast a gloom over the spirits of the whole ship's company, and put an end to a promising season's work.

FRIDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 4, 1874.

THE POINT OF THE ARKANSAS CASE.

At last the secret is out. The public are definitely informed what is the matter in Arkansas. It has been known all along, upon some general statements in the press dispatches, that the claims of Smith to the office of Governor of the State were based upon some technical defect, or supposed defect, in the proceedings to adopt the new Constitution, rendering the Constitution, and the election held under it, void. A statement was made to the effect that the irregularity complained of was the failure to go through the same forms in the adoption of the new Constitution which were required for amending the old one. This, it appears, was incorrect. The question is simply the old Brooks-Baxter controversy in another form. It now comes up thus: Baxter, it will be recollected, called a special session of the Legislature, soon after the culmination of the Brooks-Baxter war. The Legislature met and, among other things, passed an act providing for the holding of a Constitutional Convention. The Convention was accordingly held, and the new Constitution was framed. On being submitted to the people, it was ratified by over 70,000 majority. It is the election just held under this Constitution that is contested, and the ground of contest, as noted by the Republic's Little Rock correspondent, is, not that there were material irregularities in the election or in the mode of proceeding to adopt the new Constitution, but that Baxter, who called the Legislature, and who had been acting as Governor ever since January 1, 1873, under the election of the previous fall, was not lawfully elected. He was de facto Governor, holding under color of right, with the official canvass of the popular vote declaring him elected. But it is claimed that if a fair count had been had he would not have received the certificate, and that ergo he was not properly exercising the functions of the office, and ergo his calling the special session of the Legislature was void, and ergo the session was void, and ergo the act to authorize the Constitutional Convention was void, and ergo the meeting of the Convention was void, and ergo the Constitution the Convention framed was void, and ergo the election at which it was ratified by the people was void, and ergo the election of a Governor under the new Constitution was void. The old ecclesiastical controversy about apostolic succession was nothing to compare with the Arkansas performance.

Lawyers may laugh at the proposition we have stated as the basis of the claim of the Smithites to the office of Governor against Governor Garland, whom the people have chosen by more than two-thirds majority; but the carpet-baggers are seriously urging their claim, and, from all we can learn, upon no other ground.

THE ORGAN MAKES WAR ON THE NEUTRALS.

The party organs seem utterly unable to comprehend the difference between independence and neutrality. They are continually urging the impolicy and impossibility of conducting newspapers independently [illegible], and yet every time they attempt to allege a reason for their views in the premises they disclose that it is not independent journalism but neutral journalism that they deprecate. A few days since we [illegible] the party papers to favor us with something of the logic by which they arrive at the conclusion that the independent paper is not in the nature of things less liable to be affected injuriously by the vicissitudes of party fortune than any other. Yesterday morning the Bulletin attempted to respond, but showed its total misapprehension of the case by directing all its arguments not against independent but against neutral journalism. The following paragraphs will serve to exhibit the Bulletin's mode of reasoning:

In times of political excitement, like the next Presidential contest, every man will want a paper [illegible] his party is doing, and what are the reasons for its support. Should he be at the time taking an "Independent" paper he will find at once that it can not support his side, for if it does it has ceased to be independent, [illegible], in which latter case it will most likely offend and lose the [illegible] of all the [illegible] of the side [illegible] to the one whose cause it has last espoused. Here then circumstances force the paper to one side or the other, or kill its influence between the two hostile and contending lines. And we are satisfied that such a position can bring neither pleasure, profit, or influence to a political journal.

We greatly mistake the radicalism of the editor of the OREGONIAN if he shall be content to take the [illegible] in that grand contest,—and an Independent can be nothing more. He must take sides. Not a single subscriber of [illegible] would be satisfied if he did not go to one side or the other. Can he go [illegible]? If not, he must go with the Republicans. Choose the side nearest right, and fight for it.

Nothing would be further from the truth than that a paper, to use the Bulletin's form of expression, "has ceased to be independent" whenever it takes sides in a political contest. It ceases to be neutral in such cases, and we admit that the logical conclusion is, that in such a case those who subscribe for it as a neutral paper would become dissatisfied. But exactly the reverse is true of an independent paper. In the first place, everybody expects it to take sides and urge its preferences with all due ardor; and, secondly, they expect it to take sides according to its own views of the right of the matter, regardless of what any party convention may say. And exactly here is the point of difference between the independent paper and the party organ; both take sides, but the party organ takes whatever side its party conventions directs it to take, while the independent paper holds itself at liberty to espouse the cause of right and oppose the wrong regardless of party platforms. To such a paper the argument of the Bulletin has no application in reason, because every subscriber understands, when he subscribes for it, that it will take sides, that it will take the side it can support conscientiously, no matter what party may suffer by its doing so, and finally, that it is very likely sometimes to take the side that the given subscriber opposes. And in accordance with the logical conclusion are the actual facts as demonstrated by experience. The OREGONIAN, for example, strenuously opposed the Republican candidate for Governor of Oregon. It "took sides" against him. But it lost no subscribers by its course. This fall it "took sides" strongly for Judge Jacobs, the Republican nominee for Delegate to Congress from Washington Territory. It has a very large subscription list in the Territory, and it lost not a subscriber for its taking sides. So abstract reasoning and practical trial alike prove the inapplicability of the Bulletin's anti-neutral theory to papers that are exactly the opposite of neutral in their professions and practice.

The Bulletin has not mistaken our "radicalism" in the least. We have never yet occupied neutral ground, and never shall. We could not, if we would. It is not in our nature. We could never see two dogs fighting without sympathizing with one of them, and "taking sides" against the other. The OREGONIAN has been found on one side of every contest that has taken place within the scope of its circulation, since it has been under the present management, and it will continue the same course. But it is not going to stifle its conscience for the sake of any party nor surrender its judgment into the keeping of any Convention. All its subscribers understand its position, and do not expect to find it agreeing with their views on all occasions. They expect it will be independent in the true sense, and tell the truth to the very best of its knowledge, and give them all the news on both sides. This it tries to do, and their generous support shows how well an intelligent and moral community can appreciate such an effort.

The argument that "every man" will want a party paper in order to be informed what are the reasons for his supporting "his party," is original certainly, but we trust for the credit of our system of government based on intelligent patriotism, it is not true to the extent stated. "Every man" should know what are the reasons for supporting "his party," before he adopts it as "his party." The editor of the Bulletin surely wrote that "inadvertently." If the Bulletin supposes its Republican readers don't know, without consulting its columns why they support their party, it has a much lower opinion of their intelligence than we have.

EDUCATION AND INVENTIVE GENIUS.

Apropos of the subject of technical education, which is undergoing discussion among educators, an exchange notes the fact that of the 12,301 patents granted to inhabitants of the United States in 1867, 2,803 were issued to citizens of New York, 1,451 to citizens of Massachusetts, and 660 to citizens of Connecticut. On the basis of the census of 1860, the foregoing distribution gave one patent to 1,382 inhabitants of New York, one to 840 in Massachusetts, and one to 695 in Connecticut. Patent Office statistics and the census of 1870 show nearly the same proportionate distribution of patents, Connecticut maintaining her position of superiority. From these facts the journal above mentioned perceives an intimate connection between the superior inventive genius of Connecticut and her unwavering devotion to popular education. It is said, and doubtless with reason, the general cultivation of the mind quickens the inventive powers and develops strength and vigor in every direction, so that when technical subjects are taken up, particular talents requisite to mechanical invention are found active. Connecticut was the first to found the public school system which has become the pride of the Republic, and has never allowed her zeal to flag for a single year; and she stands pre-eminent as a State where education is universal, as well as where American ingenuity is at its best.

A question that has been asked a great many times and never answered is, what are the Democrats going to do when they get control [illegible] Government? Wherein is their rule to [illegible] der than the rule of the Republicans? They profess to have abandoned all the main points of political doctrine which formerly separated them from the Republicans; and it was this profession that enabled them to triumph in the late elections. But what are they going to offer the people as a distinctive principle of action hereafter? They cannot afford any negative course, and we are at a loss to perceive what position they can take as a party which will give them any advantage before the country, or on which they themselves can act harmoniously. Take the extreme State rights plank and the kindred heresies, out of the Democratic platform, and there is nothing left in it but the ordinary clap-trap that would answer as well for one party as for another.

The President will act wisely if, as reported in the dispatches, he refrain from all recommendation in his message in regard to the political quarrels, or rather the politicians' quarrels, of the South. So long as there is no armed resistance to the laws, and the local governments are equal to the task of preserving the peace and order of the community, there is nothing for the President to do. If the governments in the South are not Republican in form, it is the duty of the General Government to see that Republican governments are established. This duty is expressly enjoined by the Federal Constitution. But we are not aware that any person pretends the governments of the Southern States are not Republican; and if such were the nature of the complaint, the matter is of Congressional, not of Executive cognizance.

The jolliest gathering of the year was a "convention of the coffin manufacturers of the West," which met in Cincinnati last month. "The time was occupied in the discussion of matters of common interest to the trade, and social intercourse." In June next this ghastly association will convene in Pittsburg, Pa.

The National Temperance Union recommends that coffee saloons be opened in order that those who now visit the liquor saloons may have some other attractive place to go to. We like that idea. It is not half so bad to be killed with narcotic poison as with alcoholic.

The first of the libel suits growing out of the Beecher-Tilton scandal, the suit of Henry C. Bowen against Dr. [illegible] Barnes, publisher of the Brooklyn Argus, has terminated with a verdict for the defendant.

Besides the additions [illegible] seventy-two volumes of new [illegible] books have been received—the [illegible] entertainments given last Spring [illegible] members of the Social Union.

Lectures.—On Monday evening next Rev. T. L. Eliot will lecture, at the Unitarian Church on the "Transit of Venus." Proceeds to be given to the Church Building Funds.—Gen. O. O. Howard will lecture on Wednesday evening next in the Congregational Church. Subject: "Sherman's March to the Sea."—The next lecture at the Museum will be delivered on Monday evening next by Mrs. A. J. Duniway. Subject: "East of the Mountains."

Lecture.—Col. Joe Meek lectured last evening in Museum Hall to a fair house. He received the entire attention and hearty applause of his audience. His lectures are unlike any other man, and in order to know his style one has to hear him. He has consented to lecture this evening at the same place. What he tells has not been learned from books, but from a long and eventful life in the Wigwam and White House.

Likes Oregon.—A younger brother of Mr. William Connell, of this city, paid Oregon a visit last winter, and was so well pleased with the country, that he returned to his home in Canada, sold out his possessions there, and with his family started for Oregon. They arrived safely by the last steamer, and will procure a farm and settle down permanently in Oregon. We extend to them, and all such, a hearty welcome.

Religious Services.—Rev. Mr. Fridrichsen will hold services in the Scandinavian Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Portland, on Sunday morning at 10½ o'clock, in the Norwegian language instead of English. Services in the Young Men's Christian Association Rooms at 7 P. M. in the Norwegian language [illegible].

No Connection.—Owing to the sinking of the Tenino at Devil's Bend, on Tuesday, there will be no connection with the boats above Celilo until next Monday. Passengers and those who [illegible] ship freight to Wallula and intermediate points, will bear this in mind and make arrangements accordingly.

Convalescing.—The numerous friends of ex-Governor Abernethy will be glad to hear that he is recovering from his late severe attack of illness. We are also gratified to note the con[illegible] of Mrs. John P. Cables, who has [illegible] severely ill for some weeks past.

Not Improving.—Dr. Chandler's condition has not materially changed since the former mention of his case. His recovery is very [illegible], though not deemed impossible. He [illegible] to suffer no pain.

A Sample for Exhibition.—A sample of the New Garman Oats may be seen at the Oregonian office. It certainly looks to be entitled to all the praise Mr. Gocie gives it.

RELIGIOUS, LOCAL, PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

[Oregon Churchman.]

A new church bell is much needed at Oregon City. An old one has served to call the people together in days past, but its feeble tones fail to extend to the bounds of the parish. A [illegible] has just been erected by the unflinching energy of the pastor and his faithful flock, and now a bell is wanted that can be heard to the utmost limits of this growing parish.

We are glad to hear that the bell for St. Peter's has come and that the services of the Church and its Sunday School are regularly maintained. We know that the rector of the parish [illegible] it very near his heart and is [illegible] refreshed, in his absence, by the faithful course of his laymen. Rev. Mr. Bonnell will probably not return before April. His address is 1818, Mount Vernon street, Philadelphia.

[From the P. C. Advocate.]

The attention of our friends on the Clear Creek and Rock creek is called to their quarterly [illegible] on the 19th and 26th insts., the one at Mount Pleasant and the other at Grassy Pond.

Rev. G. W. Grannis, transferred from the Arkansas Conference to the East Oregon and Washington, arrived in this city last week, and immediately proceeded to Walla Walla, the field of labor assigned him for the present.

The [illegible] of the Taylor street M. E. Church did a good thing in connection with Thanksgiving on Thursday last, in that they provided a public Thanksgiving dinner, the proceeds of which were sufficient to procure a stove, carpet and various articles of furniture for the parsonage.

We learn from Rev. J. Howard that a union meeting of two weeks' continuance was recently held at Canyonville, Douglas county, by the Cumberland Presbyterians, the Methodists and the Methodists South. The meeting resulted in a number of additions to the church, and the general interest was beyond anything known there for many years.

A copy of the minutes of the third session of the Rocky Mountain Conference of the M. E. Church is received, with the compliments of Rev. C. C. Stratton. Bishop Bowman presided. Daniel G. Strong was Secretary and F. Asbury Riggin, Assistant Secretary. The minutes are creditable to the young Conference, and the figures indicate increase in every department of the work. In some instances the salaries are larger than any paid in the Oregon Conference.

[From the Sentinel.]

The second lecture of the [illegible] now being given under the auspices of the Catholic Social Union will be rendered on the 27th inst.

Rev. A. J. Croquet has just returned from a tour through Tillamook, where he had the happiness of receiving five persons into the Church.

All members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society are earnestly requested to assemble in their hall on next Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of attending Mass in a body.

Rev. A. J. Brabant, of the Diocese of Vancouver Island, is going on a missionary tour through Sitka for the purpose of administering the Sacraments to a number of English speaking Catholics throughout that region.

The school under charge of the Sisters at Grand Ronde Indian Agency is flourishing in a remarkable degree, and giving great satisfaction to the Indians. The Sisters commenced a few months ago with twelve scholars; the number has increased to forty-seven.

Henrichsen is on hand also with such a sparkling array of diamonds, cameos, turquoise, topaz, onyx, and the very latest styles of enameled gold jewelry, as to make the ladies' eyes fairly dance with delight. He invites the citizens of Portland to call and examine his magnificent stock. Give him a call prior to purchasing elsewhere. Read his new advertisement.

Madame Duret is playing at Olympia, coming Portlandwards.

W. C. Dudley is now playing at Virginia City with J. B. and Agnes Booth.

The McGinley Troupe is victimizing the inhabitants of Lakeport, California.

D. Belasco, who was here a few weeks ago, is now playing in an amateur company at Stockton.

Uncle Bill Barry played "Melter Moss" at California Theater a few nights since in "Ticket-of-Leave Man," W. J. Florence appearing as "Bob Brierly."

Madame Bishop Schultze and husband are now in Sydney, Australia. Mr. W. F. Baker, the beautiful balladist, who visited this city with Maguire's Minstrels, is at Melbourne.

Chas. Vivian has secured a troupe at San Francisco and will soon open a dramatic season at Eureka. The full list of the members is as follows: C. Vivian, J. B. Robinson, Elias Lipsis, C. E. Allen, Willie Simms, Bonnie Runnells, C. F. Bailey, C. Feniel, Carrie Lipsis, Jennie Reiffarth, Imogene Holbrook and Madame Muse.

Alfred Wilkie, the well known tenor, left San Francisco on the 23d ult. en route for England, where he is to remain for two years studying under the best masters and developing his voice. Mr. Wilkie came to San Francisco with Madame Anna Bishop in July, 1873, and sang at all her concerts in that city. He afterwards traveled with her through the interior of the State, Oregon, Washington Territory and British Columbia. Returning he dissolved his connection with the company in January, 1874. Since then, he has sung at church and at numerous concerts. He was elected a member of the Bohemian Club and an honorary member of the Handel and Haydn Society of that city.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theater.—J. H. Leroy's dramatization of Mark Twain's "Gilded Age" was reproduced last evening at Oro Fino Theater to a full house. Mr. Sawtelle personated the role of "Col. Sellers" in a capital manner. "Laura Hawkins" was personated by Mrs. Phelps in a very pleasing and effective style. Mr. Crowell assumed the character of "Senator Dilworthy," Jas. Barrows that of "Selby," Mr. Gunning "Clay Hawkins" and Miss M[illegible] as "Mrs. Sellers." Other members of the company appeared in the cast. The play ran very smoothly, and was in all details effectively rendered. "Solon Shingle" constituted the afterpiece, Mr. Barrows personating the title role. This evening the dramatic season closes for the present. On this occasion Mrs. Phelps will be the recipient of a farewell complimentary benefit. "Leah, the Forsaken," will be produced with a very strong cast. Mrs. Phelps will appear as the deeply wronged Jewess. During the brief theatrical season just closed, the beneficiary has been untiring in her efforts, and unsparing in matters of expense to give our citizens a class of attractive and legitimate plays, in every way worthy of patronage. It is but just that they should show their appreciation of the talents and labors of Mrs. Phelps, by giving that lady a crowded house. To-morrow morning the troupe will start overland for Victoria by way of the Sound.

THE COURTS.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, J.

In addition to their large and varied assortment of brooms, brushes, wood and willow ware, Zan Bros. & Co. have just opened the greatest variety of bird cages and door mats ever seen in Portland. The stock is immense and the variety almost infinite.

Dr. Steele's Medical Wonder has stood the test of time as the cure for rheumatic and other pains, as well as colds, coughs, cramps, &c. Taken with Wonder Pills for liver complaints, kidney disorders and impure blood. For sale everywhere.

Fashionable Outfits.—Attention is again called to the extraordinary opportunities which are just now being afforded by the extensive clothing house of JOS. KOHN, opposite National Bank. There is no place in the State where a larger or finer assortment both for gentlemen, boys and children will be found. At all times the prices have been the lowest known to the market, but at the present time it will be found that they have been greatly reduced. Mr. Kohn keeps constantly on hand a large and superior stock of furnishing goods and underwear.

Pause While You Read This! The [illegible] for parties and balls has arrived and the cold dreary days and nights of winter will soon visit us. Every young man, old man and boy for that matter, likes to present a neat appearance when attending parties, the theater, or walking about the streets. They likewise desire to be well provided against the cold blasts of snow and rain. What contributes more to the personal appearance and comfort of a gentleman, or boy, than a nice closely fitting suit of clothes, set off with a heavy warm overcoat? Why will any one be so foolish as to go without either, when BECK & WALDMAN have everything in that line. Beck & Waldman in laying in their immense fall and winter stock of Clothing have exercised great care, and selected with reference to the demands of trade. They have purchased their goods low and are determined not to be undersold. Let the public note this fact.

Radical Medication.

Medication is only successful when it is rational, and it is rational only when it begins at the beginning. In other words, to cure a malady, its cause must be removed. Weakness, either general or local, is the origin of the great majority of diseases. Reinforce the vital energies, regulate digestion and secretion by strengthening the organs which perform those all important functions, and dyspepsia, constipation, kidney and bladder complaints, uterine difficulties, impure circulation, and the thousand and one ailments which are the consequences of debility, are completely, and in most cases permanently, removed. The best, safest and most agreeable tonic and alterative that can be employed for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The experience of twenty-five years, during which time it has outlived perhaps ten times that number of ephemeral preparations which have entered into competition with it, has proved it to be unequalled as a remedy for all disorders accompanied by or proceeding from weakness.

NEVER GIVE UP!

If all the cases in which HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR has cured inveterate and apparently fatal coughs, could be made known, every consumptive in the land would take heart and commence, in hope, a course of this most wonderful preparation. Physicians who have exhausted their list of pulmonics, without benefit, recommend it as a last resort, and even in the worst extremity its effects are astonishing. But it should be the first resort, not the last. It is impossible for any disease tending to consumption to retain its hold, if met in the early stages with this powerful vegetable remedy.

A SAD-EYED MAN

HOW HE SQUARED ZACH CHANDLER'S [illegible] WITH CONKLING

Crawford writes from Washington to the Pittsburg Leader:

I do not care to say that Chandler drinks to excess. He might arrest me for criminal libel! But I think I may venture with impunity to the statement that he is not a total temperance man, and that after dinner he inclines to become extensively garrulous. A friend reports me a sample of Chandler's style as follows: Chandler loves to boast of his strength. Upon this particular occasion he raised his arm over the table.

"See my muscle," said he. "I can lick any man of my size anywhere. If I am an old man, that is because I am not licked in the [illegible]. But I won't lick a man unless he is a gentleman. Now, when a man tells a damn lie about me, my way is to go and lick him if he is a gentleman. Now look at Don Pott [illegible]; he told more damn lies about me, and I would lick him, but Don Pott is no gentleman. George Townsend I was going to lick once for telling a damn lie about me, and I hunted him for over a week, but before I found him I [illegible] he was no gentleman, and so he [illegible]."

Chandler's great hobby is his skill as a pugilist. Roscoe Conkling is also a great boxer. He has a private gymnasium in his residence at Washington, where after dinner he invites such of his friends as are gymnastically inclined for a friendly bout with the gloves. Conkling is a very good amateur boxer, and as he is a very large, powerful man, he generally has it his own way with those who are bold enough to put the gloves on with him. For some time it was an open dispute between Chandler and Conkling which was the better [illegible], after every dinner party of which he was a member, calmly assert that he could lick any [illegible].

[illegible] day last winter Chandler dined with Conkling, and the latter inveigled the great war Senator into his private gymnasium. The gloves were donned and the two doughty champions began to make graceful senatorial passes toward one another [illegible] rules of the [illegible] was of a very short duration. Chandler suddenly received a blow between the eyes which caused the huge senatorial form to go over backward, his trusty legs failed him, and then he sat down so hard that tears came out of his eyes. It took four men to get the war Senator upon his legs, but he threw up the sponge at once [illegible]. The only remark he was heard to make was: "Damn strange, and I'll fix him yet."

Conkling and Chandler were much together in a social way, and it was not long after the above occurrence when Chandler received an invitation to come up to his house and spread his legs under Conkling's social board. Chandler sent word back that he regretted very much his inability to be present, but he had a guest at his house, a valued constituent from Michigan, and he could not leave him. Conkling sent back word, "Bring your friend along." With this form of invitation Chandler [illegible]. He brought his friend with him and introduced him as Howard, of Detroit, Michigan. Howard was a sad-eyed man of diffident manners, who contented himself [illegible] the [illegible] rather than to join in the general conversation at the dinner table. Conkling was in great glee during the dinner. He told over and over again the story of [illegible] seemed to [illegible] what he thought about his ability to lick any man in the United States. Chandler took all these remarks in an absent-minded way, as if, suddenly, he had become lifted above any such ambition of considering himself a fine athlete. After dinner Conkling led his guests into the gymnasium for a general smoke and [illegible].

"Come," said he, pleasantly, to Chandler, "don't you want another bout with the gloves?" and then Conkling laughed again, in his most cheerful, turkey-gobbler style, as he [illegible].

"No, I don't want to box," said Chandler, "but perhaps my friend here [illegible] you." Turning to Howard, Chandler remarked, "You box, do you not?"

[illegible] still looked sad-eyed and absent [illegible]. "He did once know something about it, but it was such a long time ago."

"Come, come," said Conkling, "let us have a friendly bout. I won't hurt you."

[illegible] the great New York Senator was pining to knock some one down. The sad-eyed Howard, evidently flattered at the prospect of being knocked down by so distinguished [illegible].

As he was drawing on the gloves Chandler was observed to walk down [illegible] ground. A contented look was on his face, and every now and then he would raise his huge right foot up under his swaying voluminous coat-tail and give himself a congratulatory kick, expressive of rapture.

The sad-eyed man now came forward, and the round began. Conkling [illegible] proceeding at once to knock his opponent down, and he would have done so had he not found great difficulty in getting anywhere near the sad-eyed man. The affair culminated by the sad-eyed man suddenly [illegible] and landing a thunderbolt of a fist between Conkling's eyes. The Senator went over like a [illegible] room, where he lay for a moment stunned by the concussion. He was heard to say afterward that he thought a house had fallen on him.

Conkling had enough of boxing for once. Chandler made several pleasant little remarks about the skill of his friend Conkling, which were not received in the most cheerful way. Judge of Conkling's feelings the next day, when he heard that Chandler had played a joke upon him by giving [illegible] to come up and [illegible] Conkling. The Howard of Detroit, Michigan, was none other than the notorious pugilist, Jem Mace.

THE DIFFERENCE.—The Boston and Philadelphia papers have been indulging in a little friendly controversy regarding the merits of Ben Franklin as a financier. It seems that Franklin left £1,000 to the city of Boston and the same sum to the city of Philadelphia to be loaned to married mechanics in small sums to assist them in starting business, and the interest to be compounded from year to year for a hundred years. According to his calculation each legacy would amount to £131,000 in a hundred years, at the expiration of which he desired that the money should be appropriated to certain public improvements in the respective cities. Philadelphia's talent has only increased, at the end of 86 years, to $40,135, and the Bulletin concludes from this that Franklin was no "business king," and that he had a very poor understanding of what money can do and what it cannot do. But the Boston [illegible] it was not Franklin's fault, but the [illegible] of Philadelphia stewards, that the sum is not nearer the philosopher's calculations to-day. In Boston the legacy amounted, Jan 1, 1874, to $182,278, nearly four times as much as the Philadelphia fund. During the next fourteen years, if the money is [illegible] at six per cent, the sum will [illegible] $400,000. We shall certainly leave our money to Boston.

TALKED IN HIS SLEEP.—There is a man in Jersey City who owns an elevator. The other night he was asleep and his wife was awake. He dreamed, and he muttered words in his sleep. She listened. He said: "Dear Ella—darling Ella—sweetest Ella!" She would hear no more. She grabbed him by the shoulder, shook him till he woke, and then shrieked: "Who is dear Ella?" "Who is dear what?" he asked, with a surprised look. "The dear Ella you have been calling darling and sweetest in your dreams." "Oh! I must have been thinking of the dear elevator, which has cost me so much thought and trouble for the past two months. It's been all out, and no income with it." The wife subsided. She may have been fully convinced that he was wholly truthful, but she keeps a very suspicious eye on him. He chuckles when he's alone and says: "By George, that elevator was a lucky thought. If she only knew." Then he chuckles a little more, and goes and elevates his elbow.

DIAMOND ROBBERY IN NEW YORK.—New York, Nov 26.—A fashionably dressed man entered the jewelry store of T. B. Bynner & Co., corner of Broadway and Spring streets, last night, and asked to be shown some diamonds. While the clerk's back was turned for a moment he decamped and escaped in the crowd on Broadway with a tray of nine diamonds, valued at $3,860.

In our review of the financial condition of our local market it is difficult to arrive at a conclusion which will coincide with the views of all classes of people. In fact such a thing is impossible, and it is by a comparison of the ideas of individuals, of a careful weighing of the various expressions upon the subject, and giving the most importance to the opinion of those who are considered the best able to impart light upon the subject do we come to just conclusions. From this point of view then our local money market is, in commercial phrase, not close, and yet there is any general, extensive or active demand for means beyond the current requirements of those who are engaged in the business of buying and moving the produce of the country. A period of returning ease might be safely predicted at no future day. But however little it may look for the general progress and development of our state and effectively in local enterprises and improvements, it is fortunate [illegible] that the regular business of the country outside of grain movement is not at present an extensive enquirer for loanable capital, for it is extremely doubtful if [illegible] or general demand from that direction would be met without serious embarrassment to that branch of [illegible] be attended to in its own season. We would not however be construed as leading our readers to infer that monetary matters are in that condition which enables the lenders to control the market and to require of the applicant for favor just such terms as the lender may dictate. There is nothing in our financial status to incline us to reverse our judgment expressed early in the season that in Oregon as well as generally on the Pacific coast the time had come when the capital of the country must submit to reduced profits and money lenders to lower rates of interest than they have had in the past.

ON MONDAY MORNING, ON FOURTH ST., A Lady's EARRING. The owner can have the same by proving property and paying for this advertisement.

"How can I bring back the days of my youth?" was once asked by a fading belle. Around her once gathered the votaries of fashion. Her beauty had died out and she was neglected. A friend recommended the use of HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM. She used it and almost as speedily as if Aladdin's touch had transformed her she regained her healthy complexion and was surrounded by admiring beaux. She had grown wiser and less coquettish and now lives happily, the beloved center of a family group.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ or organs whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure health returns.
